INTRODUCTION

The Methodist Hospital Research Institute building comprises 440,000 square-feet of space dedicated to translating laboratory research into treatments and cures for the Methodist Hospital patients and patients around the world.

The Research Institute is physically connected to the Methodist Hospital and centered in the heart of the Texas Medical Center to streamline the development of translational advances and clinical trials. The building includes 150,000 square feet of lab space, a virtual hospital and research operating rooms, a dedicated imaging research suite, cutting edge microscopy equipment, a cyclotron and cGMP space for the production of medical-grade radioisotopes.

The building also includes state-of-the-art conference facilities for meetings and events.
